INTRODUCTION TO THE VIRIET VOLUME OF THE AMERICAN REPERTURE.

Of Arts. Sciences, and viscful Literature.

Of Aits. Sciences, and very Literaure.

FILIS object of this work is, to fustais in numbers to the rising seneration, a Mississture Recyclopedra or General Cabnett suitbracing an epitome of the most interesting topice of the age.

In carrying out this design, three important principles will be constantly in view:

First.—To select from the great mass of human knowledge that only which is useful or ornamental

Second .- To condense matter and language

as far as practical utility will admit.
Third To systematize and arrange the whole in such a manner, that each and revery whole in such a manner, that each and wevery cortion may be turned to at pleasure, without the usual alphabetic order of the several, at the cless or the trouble of a common index.

The scanty limits here allowed furbid excluded the interestion of topics upon which it is becaused, the furare page of this work will be usefully occupied—a simple hint at its origin and present design, must therefore suffice.

The example of the bee, in drawing frim an almost infinite variety of substances, that only which is adapted to its harricular wants and mode of life, to the exclusion of all superfluous or extraneous matter, and the ingenious method pursued in arranging its small, but precious or extraneous matter, and the ingentus matter so d pursued in arranging its small, but piecious stores, for future use, suggested the idea of a small periodical, of which this is a specimen.

Though the primary aim of the work will be to extract, abstract, and concentrate, within convenient limits, that which is evidently use. still, whatever is ornamental in literature, science, and the arts, will not be overlooked. science, and the arra, will not be overlook d. Nor will any pains be spared, while 'endea-so using to draw eithin these narrow limits the wisdom of the present and the experience of the pasts to excite in the minds of our readers a thirst for all as me perusal of the whole volume, though requiring but 100th part as much time. Having these five piges then, as a general index, inclinder in the volume, the contents, may be referred to, when occasion requires, without lass of time, and all the important facts fenter liarised, without the drulgery of calentite reports at the present in the be asked, which of the two will make the greatest improvement, the one practising fair plan, or the name neglecting it? The result is too abvious it to demand a question, or to merit a reply.

The following pages may be looked apass as the brief notes of one practising apon this olam they present a variety of graminent, facts and dates, that cannot fail be sall up much other valuable matter and graminent, alled by human memory.

It is only necessary, then to go one are farther, and prepare a key to the place book thus constructed; and all the reading of some inferent in Helms of debt and credit in his widder, by the sid of his alphabet, justified and the facts of the street.
